

I oppose further deregulation of the print and broadcast media. There is already too much concentration in these markets with the result that the fairness, accuracy and objectivity of our news sources have been seriously diminished. Greater competition is the best way to insure that broad discussion of public issues is promoted. Such competition is not advanced by allowing a small number of firms to monopolize the news outlets available to US citizens.